說明：第35題至第46題為單選題，每題2分。

第35至38題為題組

Have you ever wondered how dogs became "man's best friend"? Scientists believe that thousands of years ago, wild wolves began to live near human settlements. Early humans left food scraps behind, and the friendlier wolves stayed close to take advantage of this. Over many generations, these wolves became less aggressive and more comfortable around people.

Eventually, humans realized the benefits of having wolves nearby, such as protection and assistance in hunting. Through careful selection, people began to breed wolves that showed gentle behaviors. This process led to the domestication of dogs.

Today, dogs are valued not only as pets but also as helpers in many fields, including search and rescue, therapy, and law enforcement. New research continues to uncover the fascinating history behind our relationship with these loyal animals.

A library is a place where people can borrow books and use resources for free. Nowadays, many libraries offer not just books but also access to computers, study spaces, and community events. Some people believe that libraries are no longer necessary because of the Internet, but others argue that libraries continue to play an important role in society.

A. Alice

I think libraries are essential. They provide a quiet place to read and learn, and not everyone can afford to buy books or have Internet at home.

B. Brian

With so much information online, aren't libraries a thing of the past? I rarely visit one anymore.

C. Cindy

I love how libraries host workshops and activities for all ages. It helps bring people in the community together.

D. David

Libraries are important for children, especially those who need help with homework or don't have a good study environment at home.

E. Emily

Sometimes, I just enjoy walking through the library and discovering new books by chance.

F. Frank

Libraries should adapt to modern times by offering more digital resources and online services.

G. Grace

The staff at my local library are always friendly and willing to help me find what I need.

H. Henry

Many libraries now have online catalogs, making it easier to search for and reserve books.

I. Irene

Libraries inspire a love of reading in young people.

J. Jack

I think libraries are outdated and we should invest more in new technologies instead.
